I'm not robot

Graco pack and play recall list

Pack n play recall list. How to lock graco pack and play. Is graco pack and play safe.

Graco Recalls Inclined Sleeper Accessories Due to Suffocation Risk The US Consumer Products Safety Commission (CPSC) has issued a recall for Graco's inclined sleeper accessories due to a risk of suffocation. This move follows reports of infant fatalities involving inclined sleep products when infants roll over while unrestrained. Affected products include the Graco Pack 'n Play Day2Dream, Nuzzle Nest, Everest, and Rock 'n Grow playards with bedside sleepers. To check if you own a recalled product, look for model numbers on the underside of the playard or tubes. The inclined sleeper accessory is the only part under recall, and the playard, changing station, and bassinets remain safe to use. As of now, no injuries have been reported to Graco. The recalled products were sold at various retailers, including Babies R Us, BuyBuyBaby, Amazon.com, Target.com, and other online platforms, for $270-$350. The items were sold between November 2017 and September 2020 (Day2Dream), May 2015 and December 2018 (Nuzzle Nest), September 2015 and December 2018 (Everest), and December 2019 to April 2020 (Rock 'n Grow). Parents are advised to stop using the recalled inclined sleeper accessory immediately and contact Graco for a refund. Graco recalls 51,000 units of inclined sleeper accessories due to suffocation risk. Owners can find the affected model numbers on four models of Graco Pack 'n Play playards. The company has not received any reports of injuries. The recall is one of several actions taken by manufacturers and lawmakers to prevent infant inclined sleepers from harming babies. Consumer Reports calls for the CPSC and companies to get all infant inclined sleep products off the market. Despite the recall of certain inclined sleeper accessories, owners can still utilize the playard, changing station, and bassinet features of their products as instructed in the owner's manual. The affected Playards were made available at various retailers, including Babies R Us, BuyBuyBaby, Amazon, Target, and other online platforms, from 2015 to 2020 for a range of prices between $270 and $350. If you own one of these products, it is recommended that you cease using them right away and contact Graco for a refund.